For more than three decades, Mission Housing Development Corporation has worked to create and preserve quality affordable housing. We have pioneered innovative, award winning housing developments that helped define the personality of the Mission District.

Today MHDC serves almost 3,000 residents in more than 1,000 units. MHDC is one of the largest non-profit housing organizations in San Francisco, with 31 buildings that it either owns or manages.

We are successful and growing! Look for our future innovations in affordable housing for San Francisco and the Mission District.

1950 Mission Street – San Francisco

1950MissionStreet.com

1950 Mission Street is a 36,000-square-foot undeveloped parcel between 15th and 16th Streets in the heart of the dynamic Mission district. Currently it is an empty lot that sits right next to the 16th Street BART station. The parcel was recently acquired by the City of San Francisco from the San Francisco School District. It is being fast tracked to build affordable housing.

The 1950 Mission Street project is a world-class sustainable development mixed-use real estate model that envisions building; a ground floor green retail complex, a second tier of offices for green enterprises and community organizations, and a top tier of excellent affordable housing.

The construction will be done wall to wall with union labor. The ground floor anchor tenant will use union retail workers. The development will meet LEED Platinum status with the goal of achieving Living Building Challenge certification within 18 months of completion.

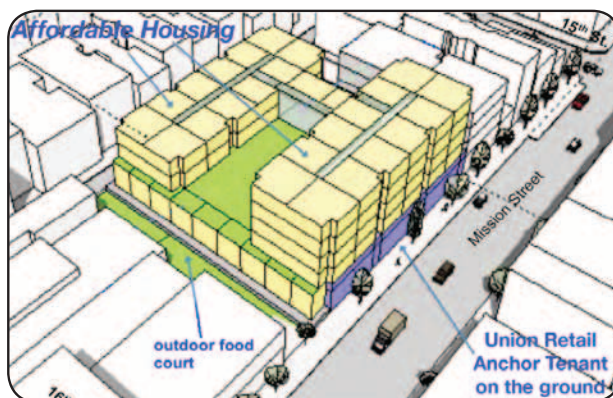

The project is designed to serve the real world needs of the San Francisco's Mission neighborhood; affordable housing, jobs, sustainable economic development, security, education, community and culture.

The goal is to bring together all stakeholders; community groups, government, organized labor, green capital and community development professionals, affordable housing advocates, local businesses and contractors, with a win-win development strategy that creates value for all.

The development project will create a model that can be replicated in San Francisco and other large urban cites that have similar needs of building affordable housing integrated with community based sustainable development goals.

Unlike the alcohol breathalyzer, chemical tests for marijuana have no clear relation to impairment or safety.

There is no good evidence showing that drug testing is needed to protect workplace safety or productivity.

California NORML opposes unwarranted drug testing and urges labor leaders to stand up for workers' rights and do the same.

Working Media & Information Services

A Program of Instituto De La Raza

www.WorkingMedia.info

Working Media is a program designed to use video and cloud computing technology to tell stories, deliver access to information and vocational training to improve the lives and opportunities of low-income working people.

Digital Video Media:

Our dedicated portal - www.workinmedia.info - has content specific channels for showcasing web video for "a world that works".

For many years, we have been successfully using digital video to tell our story, create compelling presentations, and to document speeches of labor and community leaders. By using low-cost web-video technology, we expand the reach of stories about a world that works to the 24/7/365 worldwide network of Internet users.

Our goal is to both display our own self-produced videos and to showcase videos from around the web, focusing on educational stories, innovations and solution oriented campaigns.

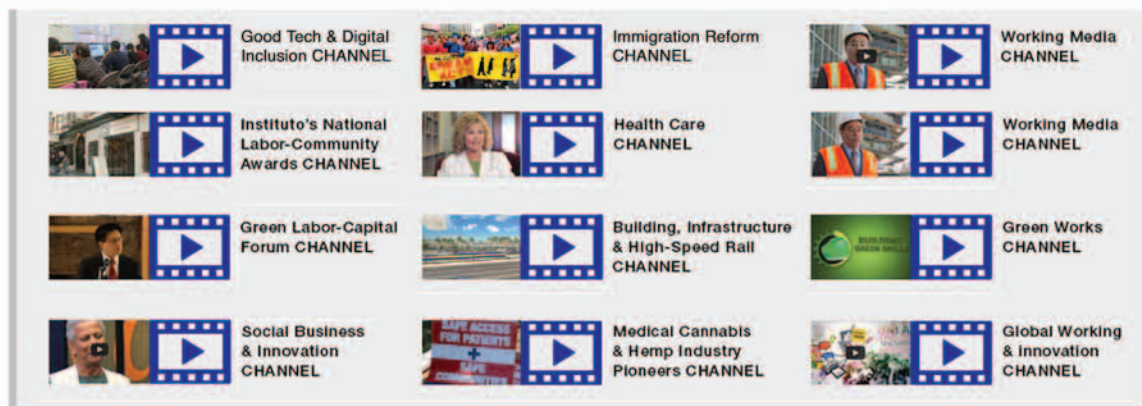

Our intention is to be more than a destination for viewing video. We seek to serve as a resource for discovering great videos that can be redistributed, posted into blogs and newsletters and embedded into other web channels.

We are engaging a network of young volunteers and video professionals to assist us. We facilitate opportunities to "learn by doing" for young people. We give credit to their contributions and skills by presenting their work within our community based portal.

Vocational Training:

Working Media has been successfully using the non-profit enterprise version of the Salesforce.com "cloud computing" contact management system for several years. We are working to establish a vocational training program for low-income workers, teaching Salesforce.com focused computing skills and Call Center customer management skills. Working Media is collaborating with the Mission Language and Vocational School (MLVS) to develop a unique training program that will provide opportunities for manual labor and service workers to learn skills and get jobs providing cloud based computing services.

Working Media - For A World That Works!

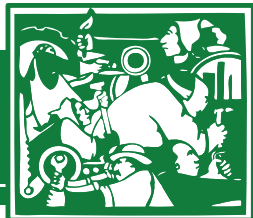

Information Services & Internet Access:

Working Media's Information Services & Internet Access project is designed to place AT&T 4G connected pad computers secured to laptop stands in the lobbies of San Francisco community based organizations serving low-income San Franciscans. This pad based Internet access system is wireless and rechargeable, so it runs all day without any electric plug or cables. The touch screen pad is user friendly, easy to learn and unbreakable with normal use. Placed in waiting rooms of health clinics, legal clinics and hiring halls, they provide an opportunity for poor people to learn and use the world's best technology. They can access information on the agencies they are visiting as well as news, mobile email, maps and transit information. These units are often used by kids waiting with parents, and quickly turn into a family learning experience. Working Media is developing relationships with cutting edge App developers, such as Resources Match - La RED, an online screening and referral software application, and basic survival guide information providers, such as San Francisco Free Help Charts, to deliver much needed information services into the hands of low-income San Franciscans.

We have designed a unique Touch Pad Web-Video Delivery System consisting of a 4G Wi-Fi connected iPad secured to a laptop stand on wheels in our client reception area. This provides our clients ready access to the videos, and other web tools while they are in our office. We have plans to place this simple Wi-Fi enabled iPad-based delivery system with other community based organizations that are serving the poor in San Francisco.
